Small Business Income Thresholds for 2023 and Beyond¹

Notes

- (1) The small business income thresholds shown in the table apply to active business income earned by a Canadian-controlled private corporation (CCPC) that is eligible for the small business income tax rate (see the tables "Federal and Provincial/ Territorial Tax Rates for Income Earned by a CCPC"). All thresholds must be shared by associated corporations.
- (2) The federal small business income threshold is reduced on a straight-line basis when the associated corporate group's taxable capital employed in Canada in the preceding taxation year is between $10 million and $15 million and nil if the taxable capital is $15 million or more for taxation years that begin before April 7, 2022. This clawback applies to all provinces/territories.

The federal government introduced a new range of $10 million to $50 million (previously $10 million to $15 million) over which the federal small business income threshold is reduced based on the combined taxable capital employed in Canada of a CCPC and its associated corporations. The new range applies to taxation years that begin on or after April 7, 2022.

The federal small business income threshold is also reduced on a straight-line basis when the associated corporate group's adjusted aggregate investment income in the preceding taxation year is between $50,000 and $150,000, and nil if the adjusted aggregate investment income is $150,000 or more.

The reduction in a corporation's federal small business income threshold will be the greater of the reductions under the taxable capital threshold and the investment income threshold.

(3) Quebec's small business deduction is available to CCPCs with paid-up capital (on an associated basis) of less than $10 million, and is gradually phased out for CCPCs with paid-up capital between $10 million and $15 million for taxation years that begin before April 7, 2022.

Quebec harmonized with the federal government by expanding eligibility for the small business deduction. More specifically, Quebec also increased the upper limit of the range to $50 million (from $15 million) of paid-up capital before the province's small business deduction is reduced to nil. These changes will have the same effective date as the related federal changes (i.e., taxation years that begin on or after April 7 2022).

Quebec's small business deduction is generally available to corporations only if their employees were paid for at least 5,500 hours in the taxation year (proportionally reduced for short taxation years) or if their employees and those of their associated corporations were paid for at least 5,500 hours in the previous taxation year, to a maximum of 40 hours a week per employee (excluding the hours paid to a subcontractor). The small business deduction is reduced linearly between 5,500 and 5,000 hours, and falls to nil at 5,000 hours.
