

Cross-Border Manuals for Investment Banking Services

Regulatory & Compliance

Mitigate your legal and reputational risks when providing investment banking services and/or dealing with correspondence banks on global financial markets

Sophisticated Cross-Border Business

The legal and reputational risk associated with cross-border financial services have increased significantly over recent years. Not only private client business is a central facet in this relation, but also business with professional counterparts. Regulatory cross-border requirements also apply when dealing with foreign professionals (incl. other regulated financial service providers / interbank market) or performing other activities with an international dimension.

The investment banking «IB» manuals are designed to meet the needs of the investment banking division making a distinction between the following activities for example:

- treasury / liquidity management
- proprietary trading
- brokerage
- acting as service provider or recipient
- correspondence banking
- etc.

KPMG's «IB manuals» cover all aspects and stages of prospective and existing relationships in terms of market approach, basic communication, solicitation, onboarding, contracting, negotiations for new clients, relationship management enhanced with a broad range of services and products for existing clients for all kind of business relationships.

Our offering includes physical and digital cross-border rules covering all types of financial services for a global clientele. This means that we can integrate the cross-border content into your core banking system (via interface / API) or as a plugin solution (web-based).

As a financial service provider, you are the indispensable link between users and providers of capital. You facilitate the flows of funds while our IB cross-border manuals assist you in complying with local regulatory requirements for your off-shore business relationships.

Vault

The screenshot shows a service scope matrix for the KPMG Cross-Border Services Catalogue. The matrix is organized by service type (rows) and by service approach (columns). The columns represent different service approaches: PRIVATE ENTITY SERVICE APPROACH (Client/CP representative travels to the FSP's domicile), CROSS-BORDER SUPPLY (FSP representative travels to Germany), and PUBLIC ENTITY SERVICE APPROACH (Client/CP representative travels to the FSP's domicile). The rows list various services: Primary Capital Market Transaction Services (issuing), Secondary Capital Market Transaction Services (trading), Foreign Exchange / FX Services, Precious Metal Services (physical & non-physical), Rates Services, Transaction, Clearing & Settlement Services, Treasury, Cash & Banknotes Services, Advisory for Mergers & Acquisitions (M&A transactions), and Bank Vault & Physical Storage Services (at the FSP's domicile). Each cell in the matrix contains a green checkmark, indicating that the service is permitted under the specified approach. A legend at the top left of the matrix defines the symbols: a green circle for 'Permitted', a red circle with a slash for 'Not permitted', and a yellow circle with a question mark for 'Permitted under conditions'.
