

2017 FINTECH100

Leading Global
Fintech Innovators

H2 VENTURES

Dear Reader,

KPMG and H2 Ventures are excited to present the fourth annual 'Fintech100' report which compiles a list of the year's best fintech innovators from around the world.

The Fintech100 represents the most innovative companies, creating products and services at the juncture of technology and financial services who are seeking to disrupt the existing processes and products that dominate the marketplace, with fintech companies from 29 countries featuring in this year's 100.

The Fintech100 is divided into two sub-lists: (1) the 'Top 50' established fintech firms around the globe, which are ranked based on innovation, capital raising activity, size and country; and (2) the 'Emerging 50' firms, which are newer companies that are at the forefront of innovative technologies and practices and often pursuing new business models.

We've selected the companies in the Fintech100 following extensive global research and analysis based on data relating to ten dimensions, including the core five factors noted below:

1. Total capital raised
2. Rate of capital raising
3. Geographic diversity
4. Sectorial diversity
5. X-factor: degree of product, service and business model innovation (a subjective measure that is applied only with respect to companies appearing on the Emerging list)

These selection criteria are the key metrics used to calculate the rankings of companies in the Fintech100 list because of the emphasis that venture capitalists place on the ability of firms to generate scale and a long term sustainable competitive advantage.

The Fintech100 in 2017 includes:

- 41 companies from the UK and EMEA (Europe, the Middle East and Africa),
- 29 companies from the Americas (North and South America), and
- 30 companies from Asia (including Australia and New Zealand).

China continues to dominate the fintech landscape, representing 5 of the Top 10 fintech companies in 2017. This follows the trend from previous years, as Chinese incumbents continue to scale with a heavy emphasis on payments and insurance. EMEA dominates the Emerging 50, with 29 companies on that list. From an APAC perspective, Australia's place in the global fintech landscape is also on the rise, with 10 companies in the List.

The sectorial breakup of the Fintech100 is as follows:

- 32 lending companies,
- 21 payments companies,
- 15 transaction and capital markets
- 12 insurance companies,
- 7 wealth companies,
- 6 regtech & cyber security companies,
- 4 blockchain and digital currencies companies, and
- 3 data and analytics companies.

Whilst lending and payments companies dominate the 2017 List, we also note the rise of data and analytics companies. Data and analytics is an important enabler of the financial services industry and innovation in this area is crucial for the industry to continue to serve the needs of customers and maintain relevance, in the face of growing competition from outside of the traditional industry boundaries. To this end, banks and other financial institutions must optimise their 'data assets' and enhance their capabilities (both internally and through working with fintech companies) in order to defend their existing profit pools and position themselves to explore new market opportunities.

A new theme which emerged from analysis of the companies in the Fintech100 is open banking – designed to foster greater empowerment of customers (consumer and small business), transparency and levels of competition. Open banking is not just the future of financial services; it is the future of commerce itself as open 'banking' is just the start – as it progressively extends to other segments of the financial services industry and then beyond, including energy, telecommunications, etc. Open data will be the catalyst for a new phase of enablement and disruption, leveraging technology and data to create new and improved products and services for customers. Open banking regulation in the UK, Europe, the United States and Australia is the start of this change. This year's Fintech100 includes 15 companies that are seeking to be a part of this solution. Founders and CEOs must have the agility and flexibility to adopt a 'plug and play' structure in a race against time and competitors.

The companies on the 2017 List have raised over US$28 billion in venture capital (including from strategic investors) and more than US$5.5 billion of capital in the last 12 months.

We congratulate the Top 10 companies in the Fintech100 for 2017:

1. Ant Financial is the world's largest third-party payments platform
2. ZhongAn uses big data to automate online property insurance
3. Qudian is an online electronics retailer offering monthly instalment re-payments
4. Oscar seeks to radically transform health insurance through technology
5. Avant is the fastest-growing marketplace lending platform for short-term consumer credit
6. Lufax online financial asset trading company and uses big data to analyse risk
7. Kreditech underwrite under-banked customers within seconds
8. Atom Bank is the UK's first purely digital retail bank
9. JD Finance uses its e-commerce expertise to provide finance across seven verticals including consumer finance, crowd-funding and payment services
10. Kabbage funds small businesses through its automated lending platform

You can read all about these companies, and many others, in the following pages.

Key Highlights

01

China, China, China

First, second and third place, on this year's Fintech100, are occupied by Chinese fintech firms. These firms are continuing a trend that is several years in the making and highlights the extraordinary rise of the fintech industry in China.

Aggregate capital raisings

The 'Top 50' companies have raised US$4.8B in the last year alone and over US$27B in aggregate capital over their lifetimes. Within the 'Emerging 50', over US$600M has being raised in the last year and just over US$1B has been raised in total (since founding).

Major funding rounds and increasing interest from notable investors

Twelve companies on the Fintech100 have raised over US$100M, notably ZhongAn's USD1.5B raise in conjunction with its recent IPO on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. Venture investors in Fintech companies include; Sequoia Capital, Index Ventures, Founders Fund and Y Combinator, together with strategic investors such as Goldman Sachs, Morgan Stanley, MasterCard and American Express.

Geographic diversification as an ongoing theme

The Fintech100 includes a broad range of fintech companies from 29 different countries, with companies from Korea, Mexico and Poland included for the first time. It is noteworthy that 19 countries are represented in the Top 50. It is clear that no one nation or region 'owns' fintech innovation – fintech is a global phenomenon.

05

The UK & EMEA dominate the Emerging 50

26 companies from the UK & EMEA are listed in the 'Emerging 50', compared to 10 in the Americas, and 14 in Asia (including Australia and New Zealand).

Asia Pacific on the rise

30 companies from the region feature on the list, many of these in the 'Emerging 50', including 10 companies from Australia. This evidences a regional focus on the fintech sector and it reflects the explosion of fintech startups across the region.

Lending and payments hold the fort

The number of lending and payments related businesses continues to stand out in this year's Fintech100, with 32 and 21 companies respectively. Disruption in the lending space continues to be a focus given the size and profitability of the segment and is expected to drive further innovation.

Data is the core of fintech business models

Data is the lifeblood of any financial institution; and will be a critical foundation for the successful adoption of any advanced analytics and artificial intelligence. The vast majority of companies in the Fintech100 are using data, analytics and artificial intelligence to fuel their business models.

Disruptors continue to stand out in the market

Disruptive fintech continue to dominate the Top 50, which are those companies that are radically changing their industry paradigm for all players and competing directly with financial institutions. However, the importance of 'enablers' (companies developing B2B solutions and working with financial institutions) has remained steady. This year's Fintech100 features 27 that are 'enablers' – working across banking, insurance and wealth management.

Open banking around the world

Some of the most exciting enablers are working with the largest banks and financial services firms in the world. Increasingly, these companies are adopting 'plug-and-play' models. Open banking regulation in the UK, Europe, the United States and Australia has been a major catalyst for this change. This year's Fintech100 includes 15 companies seeking to be a part of this solution.

"SoFi's platform - equal parts technology, community, and exceptional customer experience - is rapidly transforming personal finance." - Mike Bingle, Board Member

Company Description

SoFi assists consumers, such as early stage professionals, with their financing options across a range of lending options and structures: student loan refinancing, mortgages, and personal loans. SoFi's unconventional approach with underwriting considers account merit, employment records and a series of other key factors, creating a more holistic way of serving their customers. Individual and institutional investors are also able to positively impact social groups and the broader community while also gaining attractive rates of return.

Xapo

"If we all do our jobs well, anyone in the world should be able to get bitcoins and to freely keep, send, or use them without relying on intermediaries." - Wences Casares

Company Description

Xapo allows users to purchase, exchange, manage, store and deploy their bitcoins. The product, Xapo Wallet, is a way to manage and hold daily spending while the Xapo Vault safely keeps all the stored bitcoins. This is compelling for the target group as the Xapo Wallet has zero fees, cross-border access, timeliness and can be directly connected to the Xapo Debit Card (the first bitcoin debit card in the world). Data stored remains secure, encrypted, segregated and backed up with external drives and paper.
