Who will be impacted by the DTAA?

It is important for Omani businesses to consider the impact of these DTAA's on transactions with companies based in Luxembourg and Estonia, respectively, from a corporate tax perspective and vice versa. This may impact the taxability of various payments made in relation to both inbound and outbound investments, e.g., provision of services, royalty payments, and other transactions between the two countries.

How can KPMG help your organization?

The interpretation of DTAA's is continuously evolving, and their applicability may change over time as relevant authorities develop new interpretations. It is crucial that the articles of the DTAA are correctly interpreted, particularly since businesses have become increasingly digitalized and tax administrations are focusing on collecting more taxes and imposing penalties on aggressive tax positions based on interpretation of DTAA's. Additionally, the conditions for availing benefits under DTAA's are being scrutinized in detail by tax administrations. For instance, based on recent practices now require taxpayers to obtain formal confirmation from the Oman Tax Authority before availing treaty benefits in Oman.

KPMG has a dedicated team of experienced corporate tax specialists based in Oman, supported by a larger regional team that can help evaluate whether you can use DTAA's to optimize the tax incidence on your business.
