

Human Resources: Investigation

Forensic

Whether your organization is struggling with cases of discrimination, mobbing, retaliation or harassment; internal incidents greatly affect your employees' and thus your organization's well-being. Whereas most cases can be solved internally, some cases may require an external party to provide objective insights into complicated and sensitive matters. The involvement of KPMG will help your organization to guarantee independence and to minimize potential conflicts of interest.

Potential risks for your organization

Isolated incidents may create a snowball effect, resulting into an overall organizational culture that does not enhance desired values such as trust, transparency and openness. Valuable experience may leave your organization, your employees will lose precious energy to internal issues and your company may gain a reputation as undesirable employer. Rebuilding your organization's reputation and organizational culture will take time and effort.

Untreated incidents can result into major consequences, such as:

- Reputational damage
- Loss of confidence in the management and wasted management time
- Financial penalties or financial losses
- Operational risks
- Demotivated workforce
- Dissatisfaction at work, potentially leading into insider threats
- Poisoned ethical climate and culture
