Welcome to the Q3 2025 edition of Turkish Startup Investments Review with the collaboration of KPMG Turkey M&A and the 212 teams.

This is the twentieth edition of our quarterly review, aimed at highlighting key trends, opportunities, and challenges in the venture capital market, both globally and in Turkey.

Global venture capital investment rose to $120.7 billion in Q3 2025 from $101.1 billion in Q2 2025, marking the fourth consecutive quarter of strong global growth. The increase was supported by renewed investor optimism and liquidity, alongside heightened activity in AI-driven sectors. The total number of VC deals worldwide also grew compared to the previous quarter, reaching 7,579 in Q3 2025 vs. 7,356 in Q2 2025. In Q3 2025, the most active and investor-favored sectors included artificial intelligence, defensetech, healthtech, quantum computing, and alternative energy. One of the most encouraging developments in Q3 2025 was the rebound of IPO activity, which not only validated valuations across key sectors but also restored confidence that exit windows for VC-backed companies are reopening—signaling a healthier and more constructive market heading into 2026.

In Q3 2025, the Turkish startup ecosystem recorded a total of 121 transactions amounting to $234.6 million, including acquisitions. Although overall deal volume declined compared to Q2 2025, the ecosystem demonstrated a notable increase in the number of transactions, rising from 46 deals in the previous quarter. The main reason for the drop in deal volume is the one-off impact of the acquisition of Trendyol Go by Uber Technologies for $700 million in Q2 2025. A key highlight of the quarter was the $80 million early-stage investment in local fintech player Midas, led by QED Investors.

Looking ahead to Q4 2025, global venture activity is expected to remain steady, supported by persistent momentum in AI-driven innovation and infrastructure. Artificial intelligence will continue to dominate investor focus—particularly across applications in robotics, quantum computing, and advanced hardware—while defensetech and fintech are also likely to attract sustained interest. As liquidity conditions improve and IPO markets reopen, exit activity is anticipated to strengthen further toward year-end. However, investors are expected to stay selective amid ongoing geopolitical uncertainties and evolving trade dynamics, favoring companies with scalable business models and clear paths to profitability. In Türkiye, a similar trend is anticipated as political and macroeconomic uncertainties shape investor sentiment. Consequently, capital deployment is expected to focus on resilient, sustainable ventures with proven business fundamentals rather than rapid expansion or speculative growth.

We hope you find our Turkish Startup Investments Review report insightful. If you would like to discuss any of the information in more detail, please contact the KPMG M&A or 212 teams accordingly.

Türkiye's startup deal list

Main highlights in Türkiye's startup ecosystem in Q3 2025

Globally, VC investment rose to $120.7 billion across 7,579 deals in Q3 2025, up from $101.1 billion and 7,356 deals in the previous quarter. Despite persistent geopolitical tensions and shifting trade dynamics, investor confidence strengthened, supported by renewed liquidity and robust activity in AI, defense tech, and quantum computing. The largest deal of the quarter was Anthropic's $13 billion raise, followed by xAI's $10 billion and Mistral's $1.5 billion rounds—highlighting continued enthusiasm for AI, so as the transformative technologies. VC investors maintained a selective stance, prioritizing scalable business models and dual-use innovations, while rising IPO activity signaled a gradual reopening of exit opportunities heading into 2026.

While global VC investment activity increased both in deal volume and deal count during Q3 2025, the Turkish startup ecosystem moved in the opposite direction, with total deal volume falling to $234.6 million from $857.9 million in Q2 2025, despite an increase in deal count compared to the previous quarter, mainly due to the absence of large-scale transactions.

Investment activity was seen across all stages. Early-stage investments accounted for the largest share of total deal volume at 66.3% ($155.5 million), while startup acquisitions represented 25.6%. In terms of deal count, seed-stage investment led the quarter with 103 transactions, representing 85% of the total deal count, followed by 10 startup acquisitions. Notably, 5 of the top 10 largest deals were early-stage rounds and 3 were seed-stage rounds, collectively accounting for a significant share c.96.4% of the total deal volume excluding acquisitions.

Local investors led in terms of deal count, while foreign investors dominated in deal volume. Local investors were involved in 114 transactions, representing a deal volume of $72.9 million which is 31.1% of the total deal volume. In contrast, foreign investors participated in 7 deals and contributed a significantly larger share of the total deal volume—68.9%.

The Artificial Intelligence vertical was the top in terms of number of deals with 19 transactions, followed by SaaS with 16 transactions, healthtech with 12. However, in terms of deal volume, the fintech vertical led significantly with $94.9 million deal volume coming from 7 deals, followed by gaming and robotics verticals which are $69.9 million and $49.3 million respectively.

Midas, a leading Turkish fintech platform that enables seamless stock, investment fund and crypto trading and investments in global markets, secured an $80 million early-stage investment in August 2025. With this funding, Midas aims to strengthen its technological infrastructure and broaden its investment offerings to cater to advanced investors.

In July 2025, Good Job Games, secured a $60 million early-stage investment, co-led by Menlo Ventures and Anthos Capital, with participation from Bessemer Venture Partners. The company aims to use the funding to build a lasting entertainment brand through high-engagement, socially driven gaming experiences.

DOF Robotics, a leading developer of motion-based simulation and VR entertainment systems, went public in September 2025, selling 29% of its shares for $49.3 million. The IPO was described as a strategic step to support DOF Robotics' sustainable growth, enhance its ability to pursue value-creating investments, and strengthen global brand recognition.

Goldtag, a fintech company leveraging blockchain technology to enable the trading of precious metals such as gold, silver, and platinum, secured a $10 million early-stage investment in September 2025. The round was led by RePie Portföy, with participation from Turkcell, Colendi, Finberg, and Inveo Portföy. With this funding, Goldtag will launch its tokenization infrastructure, aiming to expand access to alternative assets in a scalable and regulation-compliant manner.

Yuppion, a Turkey-based e-commerce startup specializing in stockless operations, has sold 80% of its shares to US-based AI-powered software company Prinella for $10 million. Yuppion describes this transaction not merely as an exit, but as the emergence of a strong new player in the global market. Following the acquisition, the company is expanding its operations by adding Los Angeles-based production to its existing activities.
