

Driving frictionless supply chain performance

Shell Lubricants

Shell is the leading global supplier of finished lubricants, supplying lubricants to 150 markets. In order to remain competitive in the face of rising customer expectations, new innovations and digital disruption, Shell knew it had to shift gears in its supply chain.

We brought together senior stakeholders to develop a vision and strategy for their future supply chain – seizing the opportunities from emerging trends and technologies to deliver a more efficient, higher performing and more profitable supply chain.

By always striving to listen to customers, provide what they need and stay in step with society, Shell is ideally placed to thrive in the face of market disruption today, and in the future.

We know how your business works

