KPMG Fiji donation funds support local shelters

KPMG Fiji has donated AUD 5000 to two local shelters as it continues to strengthen its commitment to positive community impact through its support for organisations assisting vulnerable families and individuals across Fiji.

The two local shelters, Fiji Family Care Centre - The Salvation Army and Homes of Hope Fiji, provide safety, care and essential assistance to families and individuals in need.

“These donations are part of our commitment to deliver timely and meaningful social impact where it is needed most,” said KPMG Managing Partner Sharvek Naidu.

“The funds were used to address immediate needs across multiple centres.”

The donation to The Salvation Army Lautoka Family Care Centre was presented by Mr Naidu and Naomi Mitchell, head of Mid-Market & Private at KPMG Australia in March.

The funds donated to The Salvation Army Lautoka Family Care Centre meant that the organisation was able to purchase groceries to meet immediate needs. A portion was set aside for the Kauwai Boys in Raiwai, Suva, providing essential supplies, a spokesperson for the organisation said.

For the Homes of Hope Fiji, the donation was used to both meet immediate nutritional needs and to enhance the living environment of residents.

“This dual focus reflects our commitment to holistic care addressing both physical sustenance and emotional well being,” a spokesperson for the Homes of Hope Fiji said.

About The Salvation Army Lautoka Family Care Centre

Our Family Care Centres in Suva, Lautoka and Labasa in Fiji are safe houses for women escaping domestic violence, homelessness and human trafficking. Each Family Care Centre offers shelter, safety, training and support in reintegration into society for women and their families who are victims of domestic violence. Many have experienced relationship breakdowns or are in need of shelter and protection because of homelessness, mental health issues and partner suicide. Women are referred by police, Women’s Refuge and other NGOs. Without these centres, many find their only other option is to live on the streets. The issue of people trafficking has gained attention in Fiji, and the centres are involved as safe houses for women who are trafficking victims.

About Homes of Hope Fiji

Homes of Hope inspires hope in girls and young women by empowering them with opportunities, resources, and support to embrace their God-given dignity and embark on a transformative journey. The organization increases collective action to help families and communities strengthen systems that shape practices and paradigms to break harmful cycles.

Founded in 1996 by a group of local business leaders, Homes of Hope was established with a mission to rescue and restore young women affected by sexual exploitation and sex trafficking, while challenging the culture of silence and shame surrounding these issues. Over the years, the organisation has expanded its reach, developing programmes that not only support survivors but also address the underlying causes within families and communities.
