Upon application thereof, the IPA shall determine the compliance of an REE with the seventy percent (70%) export sales requirement or of a High-value DME with the export sale or investment capital requirement. Upon determination of the REE or High-value DME compliance, the IPA may issue the corresponding VAT zero-rating certificate, which will cover the immediately succeeding taxable period of the qualified REE or High-value DME. The compliance of the requirements shall be based on the performance of the REE or High-value DME either: (a) during the current taxable period, if the determination will be during the fourth quarter of the current taxable year; or (b) during the previous taxable period, if the determination will be during the first quarter of the succeeding year.

In the event of non-compliance by the RBE of the export or investment capital requirement in the immediately preceding year, as applicable, the IPA shall notify the BIR of the cancellation of the VAT zero-rating certification: Provided, That the non-compliance with the export or investment capital requirement will not adversely affect non-income tax-based incentives availed during the prior year.

In such cases, the REE or High-value DME may contest the same and/or resolve with the local supplier for the reimbursement of VAT paid, if any. The previously issued Sales Invoice (SI) to the REE or High-value DME having VAT imposed must be surrendered or returned to the local supplier for cancellation and replacement.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe a report template in a separate revenue issuance.

RULE 10. Customs Duty Exemption on Importation of Capital Equipment, Raw Materials, Spare Parts, and Accessories

SECTION 1. Certificate of Authority to Import (CAI). – The CAI shall be issued by the concerned IPA in a form prescribed by the FIRB, through the FIRB Secretariat. One separate CAI shall be issued for each registered project or activity of an RBE.

The CAI shall not replace the import permit/admission entry and/or other equivalent documents used by the concerned IPA to allow the actual entry of exempt importations into the economic zones or freeport zones.

SECTION 2. Application for CAI. – The IPAs may integrate the application and issuance of the CAI into their existing electronic import permit system, electronic transit admission permit system, or its equivalent, as may be applicable, which shall be known as the electronic CAI (e-CAI). The FIRB, through the FIRB Secretariat, in consultation with the IPAs and the BOC, shall promulgate the separate guidelines for the implementation of the e-CAI.

For IPAs with no electronic system, or pending the development of such electronic system, the application and issuance of the CAI may be done manually following the procedures for the application for import permit, admission permit, tax exemption indorsement, or its equivalent, as may be applicable.

In its original application for the CAI, the RBE shall submit to the concerned IPA a specific listing of items of capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, and accessories that it plans to import for the particular year, together with supporting pro-forma invoices, quotations, and other relevant documents: Provided, That the list of importables shall be on a “per registered project or activity” basis: Provided, further, That the RBE may apply for a supplementary CAI at any time during the year to include additional importables not included in the original application: Provided, finally, That a unique control ID shall be generated for every original issuance of the CAI, and for every update thereof to include the supplemental items.

SECTION 3. Importation Pending the Issuance of the COR. – Pending issuance of the COR, an IPA may authorize the importation of capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories for projects or activities approved by the respective IPA boards or the FIRB, subject to the posting of bond or bank guarantee equivalent to duties and taxes waived on such importations and other conditions as may be determined by the concerned IPA and the BOC.

In order for the project or activity to avail of the customs duty exemption and VAT exemption on importation, the concerned IPA shall issue a special CAI for importations pending the issuance of the COR. Once the COR has been issued, the special CAI is deemed revoked, and the registered project or activity shall be required to apply for the regular CAI pursuant to Section 2 of this Rule.

SECTION 4. IPA approval prior to importation. – The approval of the IPA through the CAI must be obtained by the RBE prior to the importation of the goods.

In approving the application for original and/or supplementary CAI, the concerned IPA shall ensure that the capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories listed therein shall comply with the requirements for customs duty exemption and VAT exemption on importation in Sections 2 and 3 of Rule 2 of this IRR.

The action of the concerned IPA, whether it be for approval or disapproval, shall be communicated in writing to the applicant.

The concerned IPA may issue separate documents such as import permits, transit admission permits, or other equivalent documents to allow the entry of the imported items into the zone, freeport, or premises of the RBE, subject to the IPA's existing rules and regulations.

The BOC shall also check that the specific items of importables reflected in the actual import permit, transit admission permit, tax exemption indorsement, or other equivalent document are likewise listed on the approved CAI; otherwise, it shall assess the applicable duties and taxes on such importation.

SECTION 5. *Sale, transfer, or disposition of imported articles. – The following rules shall govern the subsequent sale, transfer, or disposition of the capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories, including goods used for administrative purposes, which were granted tax and customs duty exemption upon importation:

- a. In case of sale, transfer, or disposition within five (5) years from the date of importation, prior approval of the concerned IPA must be secured by the RBE. Otherwise, the provisions on solidary liability under Section 6 of this Rule shall apply.
  - i. No taxes and duties shall be imposed on any of the following subsequent sale, transfer, or disposition:
    1. If made to another enterprise availing of customs duty exemption on imported capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories;
    2. Exportation of capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, accessories, source documents, or goods required for pollution abatement and control; or

  - ii. There shall be taxes and duties assessed based on the net book value of the capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories in case of the following subsequent sale, transfer, or disposition of tax- and duty-free imported items:
    1. Made to another enterprise not availing of duty exemption on imported capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories; or
    2. There is proven technical obsolescence of the capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories.
- b. In case of sale, transfer, or disposition after five (5) years from the date of importation, prior notice shall be given by the RBE to the concerned IPA.

However, when the RBE has violated any of the terms and conditions of its registration, the RBE remains to be liable for the payment of duties based on the net book value of the imported items as well as the applicable taxes under the Tax Code on such sale, transfer, or disposition, regardless if notice is made to the concerned IPA.

SECTION 6. *Solidary liability. – If the RBE sells, transfers, or disposes the capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories without prior approval of the concerned IPA, the RBE and the vendee, transferee, or assignee shall be solidarily liable to pay twice the amount of the duty exemption that should have been paid during its importation.

SECTION 7. Utilization in non-registered project or activity. – In the event that the capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories will be used for a non-registered project or activity of the RBE at any time within the first five (5) years from date of importation, the RBE shall secure prior approval of the concerned IPA and pay the amount corresponding to the exempt duties on importation thereof.

For part-time utilization in a non-registered project or activity, the amount corresponding to the duties exempt on a specific capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories shall be paid in proportion to its utilization for the non-registered project or activity: Provided, That the RBE shall adopt a method to best allocate the same at the time of application for a CAI or its equivalent.

A report on the amount corresponding to the customs duty exemption on the specific capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories utilized in a non-registered project or activity shall be submitted by the RBE to the BIR and the BOC.

SECTION 8. Validity of the CAI. – All CAIs, whether issued manually or electronically, shall be non-transferable, and shall be valid for one (1) year from the date when it was issued, unless a different period is set by the IPA, or unless earlier invalidated or revoked under this IRR.

To promote the ease of doing business, an IPA may allow the automatic renewal of the CAI upon its expiration, particularly for specific list of importables included on the previous year's CAI but expected to be utilized/imported in the succeeding year: Provided, That the concerned project or activity of an RBE is still entitled to VAT and/or duty incentives on its importations: Provided, further, That the required CAI renewal fee has been paid to the IPA, as applicable.

SECTION 9. Monitoring of the imported capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, and accessories. –

- a. The IPA shall provide the FIRB, through the FIRB Secretariat, periodic monitoring reports on the details of regular and special CAIs issued on a per-project or activity basis using the monitoring templates to be prescribed by the FIRB Secretariat. Nonetheless, IPAs that have implemented the e-CAI shall not be required to submit monitoring reports. Instead, the FIRB, through the FIRB Secretariat, shall be granted viewing access to their electronic systems to allow the electronic extraction of monitoring reports, as well as copies of issued e-CAIs.
- b. The tax- and duty-free importations shall, at any reasonable time, be subjected to inspection by the concerned IPA, BOC, and/or the FIRB, through the FIRB Secretariat, to verify whether these have actually been installed, are being used by the qualified RBE in its registered project or activity, and are not locally available in sufficient quality or of comparable quality and at reasonable prices.
- c. In the event of a contrary finding discovered during post-audit or inspection of the tax- and duty-free importations, the IPA reserves the right to delete the specific listing from the CAI. Further, the concerned IPA may recommend to the RCAs the assessment and collection of the corresponding duties and/or taxes of the covered importations, without prejudice to the IPA's power to cancel, suspend, or withdraw the grant of incentives.

SECTION 10. Certificate of Non-Local Availability (CNLA). – Upon the implementation of the CAI under this Rule, a separate CNLA will no longer be required for the availment of the customs duty exemption on the importation of capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories by RBEs: Provided, That the concerned IPA shall, pursuant to DOF-DTI Joint Memorandum Circular 001-2023, determine the non-local availability of the said importations at the time of filing by the RBE with the concerned IPA of its application for CAI: Provided, further, That the concerned IPA shall indicate in the CAI that the capital equipment, raw materials, spare parts, or accessories to be imported are not produced or manufactured domestically in sufficient quantity or of comparable quality and at reasonable prices: Provided, finally, That the CNLA for said importation is deemed integrated into the CAI; as such, in the processing of the tax exemption indorsement, the DOF-Revenue Office and BOC shall no longer require from RBEs a separate CNLA.
